

Lewis cooks most of the meals for his family, but lately it had become increasingly harder to try new recipes due to his son's multiple allergies and illnesses.

One day during work, he overhears two coworkers talking about an app that helps to meal prep so food can be eaten before it expires.

Lewis decides to try the app for himself and see if it can help with finding new recipes that accommodate his son's allergies.

He sees that he can enter all of the food items and ingredients in his kitchen, and the app will suggest different recipes based upon these ingredients.

Peyton Fisher

Now, Lewis can buy groceries he knows that his son will be able to eat, and the app suggests all sorts of recipes he's never tried before.

His new hobby is posting pictures of his attempt at the recipes for other users on the app to see. Lewis has found a new passion for cooking, and his son enjoys every meal he makes now.